Collective Wisdom Circle Story...
What I witnessed.....

1. An opening to trusting their own power as leaders
2. A re-defining and re-writing of their own leadership stories (some which hindered and those that helped)
3. A challenging of outdated norms and the identification of new boundaries for self care
4. A letting go of self-doubts and criticisms that impeded effective leadership
5. An opening to taking in the impact of their leadership
6. A creation of passionate and authentic relationships within a community of women leaders
The more room you give yourself to express your true thoughts and feelings, the more room there is for your wisdom to emerge.

— Marianne Williamson
Over 10 years ago the Collective Wisdom Initiative was formed by a network of practitioners and scholars around the world.

Fetzer Institute supported the development of the network and this book.

What is Collective Wisdom?

“Wisdom reflects a capacity for sound judgment, discernment, and the objectivity to see what is needed in the moment”.

“Collective wisdom reflects a similar capacity to learn together and evolve towards something greater and wiser than what we can do as individuals alone”.

“We believe our capacity for collective wisdom is innate and its emergence in groups catalyzed by awareness of a compelling need and a higher purpose”.

- pg. 4 The Power of Collective Wisdom
My belief about Collect Wisdom:

- Collective Wisdom is the journey of accessing the deep inherent knowledge that lives within every individual, group and community.

- It is the process of dropping down to listen and witness our own innate knowing and creating spaces for authentic sharing.

- Collective Wisdom honours that the knowing already exists and our role is to access it.
6 stances:

The six stances that deepen our capacity for wise action and prepare us for collective wisdom to arise are:

1. Deep Listening
2. Suspension of Certainty
3. Seeing Whole Systems/Seeking Diverse Perspectives
4. Respect for Others/Group Discernment
5. Welcoming All That Is Arising
6. Trust in the Transcendent
1. Deep Listening:

- Deep listening invites us to be curious about what is really going on inside the person, the group, or the larger collective.

- Deep listening is a way to pay attention to both interior and exterior worlds in order for groups to make sounder judgments and act in accordance with deeper values.
2. Suspension of Certainty:

- This commitment to suspend certainty is what makes our knowing together collective, because something new and often unexpected emerges in and through the group.

- A greater collective wisdom becomes possible because ideas are no longer the possession of one person or subgroup, but are shared by those who helped shape it together.
Groups need to gather information from many diverse perspectives to increase their understanding of the whole.

Committing to this stance requires us to find ways to synthesize diverse information, whether through multiple personal conversations, data collection or group methodologies that emphasize listening and discovery.
4. Respect for Others & Group Discernment:

- Respect is a commitment to esteem others, even when disagreement arises. It is a willingness to recognize dissent as an avenue for new learning.

- Discernment is a capacity in groups for differentiation, permitting the emergence of new thinking and new images of what is possible.

- When respect and discernment are brought together, groups have a renewed ability to find common ground.
5. Welcoming all that is Arising:

- How we invite others into relationship matters

- It brings attention to sharing power with others and treating others as equals

- This commitment encourages us to welcome the pleasant and unpleasant aspects of group life, recognizing that even disruptive obstacles or difficult circumstances can be critical aspects of our passage to wholeness
6. Trust in the Transcendent:

- Underlying and critical to all stances that aid collective wisdom emergence is a _respect for human agency, the powers of nature_ and the _significance of the spiritual dimension_ to the activities we undertake.

- When we look out upon the world with awe and wonder, we are _better able to see constructive possibilities_ rather than simply constricting limits.

- We become capable of remaining secure even in our uncertainty and better able to ask others for assistance, _co-creating a world that works for all_.

At its core, wisdom circles are made up of -
Tammy - the sagacious sage,
Laura - the salubrious chef,
and
You - the sentient souls
who will surely savour these words in the circles:

- Be Present
- Authentic:
  Ruminate over how to become better connected to yourself and - as a result - your community
- Owlish:
  Spend numinous nights together with wonderfully wise women
- Be Vulnerable
- Unique:
  Share your special gifts with the group; The circle loves to be stretched
- Be Honest
- Insatiable:
  Relish the postprandial discussions and discoveries. You’ll want to come back for more
- Be Supportive
- Promissory:
  Intend your dreams and watch them bloom. The circle is full of promise and opportunity
Break into small circles of 6 people
Choose a talking stone for your group
We will take a couple moments in silence reflecting on the questions
We will ring a bell, someone in the circle starts by sharing their reflections from one of the questions
Everyone else brings their presence to the individual sharing
Once the individual is done they pass the talking stone to another person in the circle
We have 25 minutes for this journey so please self monitor sharing and group timing
1. What helps me deeply listen to my own wisdom as a leader?
2. What hinders my ability to be present to my own wisdom within groups?
3. What resonates for me around Collective Wisdom? (share my experiences or beliefs)
Thank you for opening to the possibilities of Collective Wisdom!
